The KRA community-wide garage sale will be held Friday, August 5th and Saturday, August 6th this year. The garage sale will be advertised to begin at 9:00 a.m. both days - rain or shine. All Kilkich residents are encouraged to host their own yard sale during the garage sale weekend. Earn some extra cash selling items you don’t need, use, or want anymore. Expect heavy vehicle and foot traffic during the two-day sale.

The event will be advertised in the local newspapers and media; a large banner will be hung at the entrance to Tribal Lands announcing the two-day event. The Kilkich Residents Association (KRA) will hold a drawing again this year for all homes actively participating in the garage sale. Each day of the garage sale, a KRA member will visit each residence actively participating in the sale. Each residence will receive a raffle ticket - one ticket, per day, per address. If multiple families are holding their sale at the same address, only the resident at the garage sale address will receive a raffle ticket. Two winning tickets will be drawn on Monday, August 8th; each winner will receive a $25 prepaid VISA gift card.

Please contact KRA Chair Rocky Doyle at 541-888-4910 or KRA Treasurer Carol Arzt at 541-662-1331 if you have any questions. Good luck with your yard sale!

As you might imagine, the CIT Library has sources on the languages spoken by ancestors of today’s Coquille Indian Tribe. A recent addition to the Library will teach you some Miluk, and Hanis, and also teach you about how the Coquille Tribe’s ancestors used over 100 species of plants endemic to southwest Oregon.

_Ethnobotany of the Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians_ (CTCLUSI) is a new book by Patricia Whereat-Phillips, a Coos Tribal member, language expert and storyteller. While written about the CTCLUSI, many of the plants listed and were also used by ancestors of today’s Coquille Indian Tribe.

Yes, this book is about the CTCLUSI but please remember that the Miluk language, included in this book, was spoken by ancestors of both tribes. This book describes many endemic plants used by native peoples of southwest Oregon. Information on the plants include the parts used, how they taste, where to find them and, most importantly, what they were used for. Some plants were used for food, some for medicine and some for clothing. It also emphasizes traditional languages and stories; no surprise considering the author’s background.

The book’s introduction talks about the three languages connected with the CTCLUSI: Siuslaw, Hanis and Miluk. Each plant described in the book includes a translation into each of these languages. To help readers speak these words correctly, the book includes a pronunciation guide for the linguistic symbols used in these words to emulate sounds not used in the English alphabet.

Entries include a description of the plant and how it was used. The translations are easy to find and with the guide, easier to pronounce than normal. Many entries will reference interviews with native people who talked about how they used the plant. In one example, a Tillamook man refers to Ash as being the best wood to make canoe paddles out of.

_Ethnobotany of the Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians_ is one of several resources at the Tribe’s library that contains information on the traditional use of plants and the Miluk language. This book is the newest resource that contains information on both subjects. The CIT Library currently has three copies of this book available for lending.

Tips and Advice to Help You Stay Safe Online

Keep a Clean Machine:
- Keep security software current.
- Automate software updates.
- Protect all devices that connect to the internet (smartphones, gaming systems, and other web-enabled devices).
- Plug and scan USBs (they can be infected with viruses).

Protect Personal Information:
- Make your password a sentence at least 12 characters long (use something easy to remember, e.g. “lllovehappypdogs”).
- Separate passwords for each of your online accounts is best; at a minimum, separate work and personal accounts and have STRONG passwords for critical accounts.
- Write your passwords down and keep them in a safe place away from your computer.
- Set privacy and security settings on websites to your comfort level for information sharing.

Connect With Care:
- When in doubt, throw it out - links in email, tweets, posts, and online advertising are often how cybercriminals steal your personal information. Even if you know the source, if something looks suspicious, delete it; it is better to be safe.
- Get savvy about Wi-Fi hotspots; limit the type of business you conduct and adjust the security settings on your device to limit who can access your machine.
- Protect your $$; when banking or shopping online, be sure the site is “https://” secure, meaning the site takes extra measures to secure your information; http:// is NOT secure. https://www.bankofamerica.com is an example of a secure site.

Be Web Wise:
- Stay current with the latest ways to stay safe online. Technology changes quickly and cybercriminals are always finding new “open windows of opportunity”.
- Be wary of communications that implore you to act “immediately”, offer something that sounds too good to be true, or asks for your personal information.
- Back up your digital information often and store it safely.

Be a Good Online Citizen:
- What you do online has the potential to affect the people you communicate with electronically and beyond; practicing good online habits benefits the global digital community.
- Post only about others as you would have them post about you.
- Help the authorities fight cybercrime and report stolen finances or identities and other cybercrime to the Internet Crime Complaint Center, https://www.ic3.gov, and to your local law enforcement or state attorney general, as appropriate.

Practice STOP.THINK.CONNECT. and encourage others to do the same.
