Annual CIHA Landscaping Contest the Week of June 14th

You do not have to be an expert or seasoned gardener to participate in this contest!

CIHA will hold its annual landscaping contest again this year. Master Gardener judges will be on Tribal Lands the week of June 14th to judge the yards. Your yard will be judged unless you notify CIHA that you do not want to participate. The judges will be walking through your front and back yards to take notes. The judges will not enter or judge yards with dogs running free.

Categories are the same as in past years. Both homeowners and renters are eligible to participate and will be judged separately. Within the homeowner and renter categories, the front yards and back yards will be judged separately. Prize categories are also the same as in past years, and are as follows:

- 1st Prize = $100
- 2nd Prize = $75
- 3rd Prize = $50
- Honorable Mention = $25
- Prizes will be awarded as gift cards.

If you DO NOT want to participate in the contest, please notify CIHA by

Rocks and More Rocks at the CIT Library

Earthquakes, Tsunamis, and the Pacific Northwest

Submitted by Chris Tanner, CIT Librarian

christanner@coquilletribe.org

Having participated in the Killich 2015 Earthquake and Tsunami Evacuation Drill, I thought I'd share a few resources in the Library that contain information on how the local area has been impacted by these catastrophic events. The materials include information on traditional stories regarding tsunamis, maps, and interesting land features you might want to visit some time.

Oral Tradition of Earthquakes and Tsunamis on the Central Cascadia Coast:

This essay is part of the Changing Landscapes book series which contain multiple works on various subjects related to the Coquille, Coos, and other tribes from the northern California and Oregon coast. This paper focuses on traditional stories involving huge waves or "floods" that can be found up and down the Pacific Northwest. Traditional stories involving earthquakes and tsunamis were told all over the Pacific northwest. You can read about a few of them here plus get some analysis connecting these stories to known geologic events including the 1700 earthquake off Japan that sent tsunami waves to this area.

South Slough Adventures:

This book is a locally published collection of essays written by descendants of families from multiple backgrounds that lived along South Slough's waters in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The book is not focused on the geology of the area of South Slough, but two of the essays included in the work mention the impact of tsunamis on the local landscape.

Roadside Geology of Oregon:

For the traveling amateur geologist comes this book describing the geology alongside multiple Oregon highways. Hoping to give the reader a new perspective on their next road trip, the book explains the land features in clear language along with many sketches and photographs. Just about every section of Oregon is covered here, including a section of Highway 101 between Florence and Port Orford.

People of the Coquille Estuary by Roberta Hall:

This book looks at the first inhabitants of the lower Coquille River through many perspectives, including the geology of the area they lived in and how the land changed while they were living there. In addition to describing the changes caused by seismic activity, the section of the book dedicated to geology describes man-made changes such as the creation of the Coquille River's jetties by the Army Corps of Engineers and damming up of upriver creeks to create pasture for cattle.

Atlas of the Pacific Northwest:

The CIT Library has several copies of this long-standing resource for reference information on Oregon, Washington, and Idaho. The chapter dedicated to landforms and geology includes a section describing local plate tectonics with maps of major tectonic features, as well as maps of glaciers, lava-flows, landslides, and tsunamis. Besides this type of information, the book is also good for those who seek answers to questions like: What is the foggiest place on the Pacific coast?

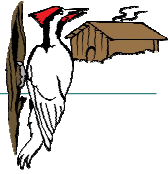

The Library's annual IMLS grant funding cycle begins June 1. If you have any books or other media you would like to see added to the Library's collection, please contact the Library via the CELS office and give the Librarian your

Possession Or Use Of Marijuana Is Prohibited in Coquille Indian Housing Authority Premises

With lots of news recently about marijuana decriminalization and authorization of medical use of marijuana, people have been asking whether it is okay to possess or use marijuana in Coquille Indian Housing Authority (CIHA) premises.

The answer is no.

Possession or use of marijuana for any purpose is prohibited within the Tribe's reservation lands, facilities, and housing as a matter of federal law.

Even though the State of Oregon allows the legal possession and consumption of marijuana for medical purposes, Oregon's law does not change federal drug laws, and those are the laws that apply to CIHA housing. Marijuana remains classified as a Schedule I drug under the federal Controlled Substances Act and thus subject to federal prosecution. Because Tribal reservation lands are federal trust lands and are subject to some federal jurisdiction, the possession or use of marijuana is unlawful.

If CIHA were to allow marijuana use or possession in its properties, CIHA's federal funding could be jeopardized as well.

Section 207 of the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act, which is the law that provides federal assistance for CIHA, requires rental leases and homebuyer agreements to state specifically that drug-related criminal activity, like the use or possession of marijuana, is cause for eviction.

As a result, if you use or possess any federally controlled substance, including marijuana, in CIHA housing, you will be subject to eviction.

Additionally, the federal Drug Free Workplace Act requires federal contractors and grantees like CIHA to agree to provide a drug-free workplace or face sanctions, such as suspension or termination of funding. CIHA could be prohibited from seeking federal funding in the future if it violates such language.

- ❖ Other (referral from South Coast Head Start, AFS, Children's Services, ESD & other)

The Coquille Indian Tribe Head Start is a family-based program for Early Childhood Education designed especially to target Native American families. Head Start provides children with activities that help them grow mentally, socially, emotionally and physically. The Head Start staff recognizes that, as parents, you are the first and most important teacher of your children. The staff welcomes your involvement in the Head Start activities and will work as partners with you to help your child progress.

If you have any questions, please contact the Coquille Indian Tribe Head Start staff at 541-888-9494 or pick up an application at the Coquille Indian Tribe Community Center located at 591 Miluk Dr, Coos Bay, Oregon 97420

Our Head Start program offers assistance to low income families that have transportation needs to participate in parent activities after the hours of Head Start. Assistance will be provided on a case-by-case basis and will need to be pre-approved. Please contact Cristina Hyde or Tanya Clark for assistance.

The Coquille Indian Tribe is an equal opportunity provider.
